Orto Botanico “Giardini dei Semplici”
Botanical Garden of Florence
Via Per Antonio Micheli 3, Florence
The Botanical Garden is a section of the Natural History Museum of the University of Florence, the third most ancient in the world, it was founded by Cosimo I de’ Medici in 1545. About 2 hectares hosts outdoor flower beds and greenhouses. Today’s collections include: medicinal and poisonous plants, edible plants, cycads, ferns, acquisitive, citrus, palms, succulents and monumental architecture. A tactile odor-filled itinerary has been created in the hot greenhouse and in the outdoor flowerbeds for visually impaired and blind people.

Area Archeologica, Fiesole
Via Portigiani, 1, Fiesole
The vast area archeologica of Fiesole makes it possible to travel through time and space to search for spontaneous species that have contributed so much to improving the daily life of the people who lived through the endless arrivals of various civilizations in the city. There are also many trees: native, naturalized or exotic species, such as the Osmanthus fragrans, provenience from orient.

Giardini della Fondazione Primo Conti, Fiesole
Via G. Dupré 18, Fiesole
The name of the fifteenth-century Villa ‘Le Coste’ takes us back to the ideal sun-filled spot for growing the grapevine, a plant that has been present in the Mediterranean for millennia. The space was created as a vegetable garden and orchard, but, even more importantly, within the Villa is the oil mill and its olive trees surrounding it. The olive tree originated in Asia Minor and Syria and, after a long journey, landed on the hills of Fiesole from the sixth century BC. There is also an evocative rose garden and centuries-old cypress.
